PROBABLY HAS A SECRET TO TELL

Coleman's Ghost Might Throw Light on the Mystery Surrounding His Murder.

SOCIETIES ARE ORGANIZED

To Conduct Physical Research in This Line—Numerous Cases Reported.

There is really nothing strange about the appearance of the ghost of Coleman, who was murdered last year. This is perfectly in line with the manifestations of this mysterious phenomena.

The Society for Psychical Research has a record of upward of 370 narratives of appearances of ghosts, minutely described and some of them attested to by witnesses and corroborated by competent persons.

The investigations of this society have been patient, untiring and upon a strictly scientific basis. According to these investigations it appears that the salient characteristics of ghosts which are best authenticated and which seem to possess the greatest persistency of power and purpose—are of those who have died violent deaths. The generally accepted theory to account for this coincidence is that the soul, thus torn suddenly and prematurely from the body, retains more of the material elements of the body than it does when death is the result of gradual disintegration and the natural separation of the material from the immaterial.

Another characteristic is that every ghost seems to have a purpose for its appearance or auditory manifestation, and as soon as this purpose is fulfilled, the ghost will cease its activity. Its mission seems to be confined not only to conveying the one item of intelligence, but to the actual scene of the tragedy.

Some ghosts have a comparatively brief existence, while others persist for years in haunting a given spot, but they all eventually disintegrate. The capacity for continued existence depends upon the intensity of the emotions which produces them. It depends principally, however, upon the successful performance of its mission. When that is accomplished, it disappears at once and forever.

A well authenticated ghost story runs like this: A young couple were engaged. Her father withdrew his consent, the mother on her death-bed made its renewal her last request. The father, instead of getting over his sorrow, seemed more and more bowed down with an ever-increasing sense of "horror." One day he told his married daughter and her husband that his wife haunted him every morning at four, the hour when she died, always talking of the young couple. They asked him what clothes the apparition wore and he said "The last dress I gave, and a cap of your making." On their way home, the married daughter told her husband that it was when in that dress and cap that her mother had said to her, "If I die before your father renews his consent, I shall haunt him till he does." She was then in perfect health. This was never told to the father, but he was urged to renew his consent. For some months he could only escape the visitations by having some one awake with him in the room. From the day he consented again to the marriage his wife's visits ceased.

From all this it is but natural that there should be a manifestation of the shade of the murdered Coleman, and it is further evident that there is a mission to be fulfilled. Hence it is the plain duty to the percipient of Coleman's ghost, to make an effort to find out what that mission is, or what the information is that Coleman's ghost wants to convey. Mr. Yokey need not be frightened, or have any apprehension whatever. A ghost, not being a corporeal entity but a disembodied spirit, it could, as a matter of course, not inflict corporeal harm on any one. There is a well authenticated case where a ghost appeared to a Frenchman at a time when he was ready to retire. The ghost stood in the doorway, but the percipient nonchalantly walked right through the ghost and went to bed.

Mr. Yokey should make it a point to pass the scene of the Coleman murder at the "proper" time and intently listen to the message on information which the ghost is endeavoring to convey. It may be a matter of the utmost importance bearing upon this gruesome tragedy.

EXTENSIVE PLANS FOR DEDICATION

Of the First Baptist Church to be Held Next Sunday—Prominent Ministers Will be Here.

GOOD MUSIC IS ARRANGED

The members of the First Baptist church are making extensive preparations for the dedication of their new church home in North Morgan street. Services will be held all day, beginning with Sunday school at 9:30 o'clock. Many prominent ministers of the church from Greensburg, Shelbyville, Connersville, Seymour, Franklin, Indianapolis and other cities of the State.

It is planned to make the afternoon session a union service, when Rev. George M. Lehigh of Indianapolis, who is well known in this city, will deliver a sermon and the Main Street Christian church quartet will sing. Connersville musicians will also take part in the program.

BENNETT AND BUTTS TAKEN TO PRISON

One of the Prisoners Was Melancholy
While the Other Faced the Future With a Smile.

PLACED IN THE REFORMATORY

Fred Bennett and Luther Butts were taken to the Jeffersonville Reformatory today by Sheriff King. Butts was in a melancholy mood and did not seem to enjoy the idea of five years behind the prison bars, while Bennett showed a spirit of levity. He faced the matter like a true optimist and remarked to his friends as he was passing down the street, "I'm taking Butts to his new home."

MEMORIAL ON SUNDAY

Services Will be Conducted at Arlington M. E. Church.

Memorial services will be held at the Arlington M. E. church Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. S. A. Morrow will preach the sermon. In the afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, a procession will be formed at the church and march to the cemetery to decorate the graves of the old veterans.

The shipbuilding output of the United Kingdom last year was 926,669 as against 1,607,890 the previous year.

Knocks Against the Knocker

It is never in order to knock, but there are times when it is necessary to take people to task, as a father would chastise his child, when a word of caution or punishment is needed. Evils can go uncorrected until they grow into big things and one's conscience becomes calloused against the tortures of conscience-pain. Here is the situation in a nutshell: Something must be done in Rushville to change conditions and the tendency of things in general. It would not be in order to send out in to the world a big knock on the old town, but the people here must sooner or later be brought to the realization of the sad need of an organized effort on the part of the citizens if they would have us keep up with the procession. In some respects we are not even standing still—we are going back. And all around us, with but half of the natural resources that we are blessed with, other cities are fast forging to the front. It will be well to pause and look around and take a bird's eye view of the situation. Really, it is alarming. Some few things, that come to our minds just now, are set down in the following pointed paragraphs:

There is a spirit of jealousy among the business men which should be supplanted by a disposition to "take your hat off" when they see others have their efforts crowned with success.

There are scores of people who do not know what they are talking about who persist in knocking the hotels here. They are as good as can be found in any small city. Remember every time you speak a word against them you are not profiting by such a remark, but on the other hand are injuring both the city and the hotel men.

Every city around here has a Carnegie library. There is a reason why we did not locate one here long ago.

Rushville was far ahead of Connersville, New Castle, Shelbyville, Greensburg and other cities a few years ago. Why did we not keep up the pace? Petty jealousy and lack of organization.

For some reason or another, even the Social club has dropped behind the procession. There has been a lot of talk even about them selling the place and reorganizing the club.

The city should build an opera house and city building together. At present we are using a large barn to serve the latter purpose. Greensburg cleared over $2000 on their theater building last season. With the railroad facilities we have Rushville would be the big convention city of this district if we had a proper convention hall. The city should own it.

It is a pity indeed that there is not a proper organization here to step out, and with a network of influence, bring about the solution of a perplexing question like the one that confronts the Tri Kappa sorority. After being promised the theater for a minstrel show, they went ahead and rehearsed, incurred some expense, had bills printed, etc., and then at the last moment had the show called off. It is a downright and burning shame that there isn't an adequate place in a city like this to put on the show.

Some people insist on gossiping about their neighbor. They openly and boldly admit they do it willfully and declare that gossip is good, for it serves to keep people in line.

When Earl Churchill was fearless enough to open a big store that Rushville could well feel proud of and not only put his money into it, but gave it the best part of his life, even sacrificing his health, instead of applauding his efforts, the same old clan hung about and speculated how long he would be able to keep the establishment going. There were scores and scores, who were not interested other than to hope he would fail. That's the spirit we must put down here.

Then there is a cry of graft every time anything is attempted here for the welfare of the city. It is an excuse a great many people use to keep from giving up a little money which would prove bread cast upon the waters.

Some may think that not having a small thing like a ball team did not amount to anything to a city. Well, it does, Connersville holds their ball fans every Sunday by a game there. Rushville people go to Indianapolis. And they spend money there, too.

It would be safe to say that every Saturday night and Sunday Rushville people spend from $300 to $500 in Indianapolis at theatres, ball games and in saloons and other resorts.

There are some who have contended for years that what was needed here was a few first class funerals. That thought is a fallacy; the younger set, without the proper organization, is just as bad. It is in the blood.

The first thing needed here is a commercial club organized with every business and professional man on the roster. A good strong organization could and would dispose of every big question that confronted the people. Take for instance the Chautauqua, the free library and paved street question, and many other like questions. An ironclad organization could be effected here that would be so strong in the way of molding, and in a sense, controlling public opinion, that there would be little friction and strife in settling such problems.

Last night—and many other nights for that matter—more than one hundred of the representative people of this city left for Connersville on a special car to attend the theater there. Is there any reason why Rushville should not have a good theater and all this money kept at home? Besides, a theater booking high class attractions, brings people to the city.

Our banks should be given every encouragement that their lists of depositors be increased in every legitimate manner. Nothing speaks higher for a city than good substantial banking institutions. We have four first-class establishments here and we ought never lose an opportunity to say a good word for them.

Yesterday two men were here looking over the ground with a view of locating a factory that would employ sixty people. Who was there to talk to in an intelligent manner on the question? Nobody! They did not stay long for what little word they did get was discouraging. One of them remarked that he never saw a more beautiful little city but the minute he saw we did not have paved streets, he knew the germ of progression had been exterminated.

The promoters of the Chautauqua have spent four or five days trying to stir up a little enthusiasm. Everybody knows the Chautauqua is a great thing for Rushville, but—well, it's the old story of lack of permanent organization.

Even our horsemen will be found knocking each other when a prospective buyer comes to the city. They should help each other: it would mean more money to all of them. They lack the spirit of scratching each other's backs.

Don't kick on the natural gas at twenty-five cents a thousand. It is a poor man's luxury at that price. You couldn't burn cobs at the same figure, and then think of all the inconveniences that go hand in hand with other fuel questions.

STOCK WAS LOST IN HEAVY RAIN STORM

Horses, Cattle and Calves Washed
Away in the Submerged Lowlands.

ED ADKINS HAD A BIG LOSS

The Carthage Citizen has the following account of the damage done by the rain storm in that vicinity:

Blue River was out of her banks Thursday morning as far as the eye could see. One of the heaviest rains ever known here fell Wednesday evening and continued for several hours. The river was not the highest it has ever been, but it covered most of the road between the river and the road between the bridges north and south of town. All the lowlands were submerged and some stock lost by Ed Adkins, who had several head of horses, cattle and calves on pasture. At this time we can not learn the full extent of damage done.

WILL ATTEMPT TO BREAK ALL RECORDS

Dick Wilson & Son Have Contracted to Race Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C.

PACERS IN GOOD CONDITION

Dick Wilson & Son evidently believe that they have something in the championship line in Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C., says the Western Horseman, for they recently made a contract with the Indiana State Board of Agriculture whereby they will make an attempt at the next State Fair to beat the record for mare and the record for stallions. Both pacers are now in splendid condition, and with no bad luck in the line of training, they will be able to step some merry miles early in September.

TO DECORATE TOMORROW

Memorial Services to be Held at Manilla M. E. Church.

Rev. S. A. Morrow will deliver the annual memorial address at the M. E. church tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. After the services the procession will be formed at the church and led by the band will move to the cemetery, where the old soldiers' graves will be decorated.

NEW CHAPTER IN GREENGOOD CASE

Fayette County Man Disappeared
Suddenly—Name Connected With Swindle.

HIS WHEREABOUTS UNKNOWN

Thorough Investigation May Bring
Some Further Startling Revelations.

With a proper investigation it is likely that at least a dozen men would be found interested in the green goods game in this county. A man living near Glenwood said that only recently he was approached by a neighbor who offered to sell him some of the home-made variety of currency. The Connersville News has the following regarding the strange actions of a Fayette county man under suspicion:

"A Fayette county man whose name has been mentioned in connection with some of those in and near Glenwood, is said to be out of the county, at present. Rumor says that on receipt of certain information from Rushville, relative to Daubenspeck's arrest, he engaged a party here to take him to Cambridge City in an automobile, one night, recently, and has not since been seen.

"In rendering a verdict in favor of Stamper White at Rushville, the jury gave Mr. Meek, the plaintiff, rather a raw deal."

GREENSBURG MAN IN RACE

Everett Arbuckle Will Drive Auto in Indianapolis Next Month.

When the automobile races commence at the big automobile track of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in June, a local man will be prominent amongst the drivers of stock cars, says the Greensburg News.

Everett E. Arbuckle of the Harry Hamilton Automobile Company, will enter the event for stock cars selling for $2500 and under, and will drive a Marion flyer car in the race.

EXTRA SESSION OF COURT

OILING THE STREETS.

Tom Hiner, the local Oil King, was in Greensburg this week and presented the oil street proposition to the merchants of that city. He may contract to oil the streets in the business district.

The kidney secretions passed far too frequently and the most acute twinges darted through my loins at unexpected times. LIQUOR AND TOBACCO UNDER THE SAME BAN

Presbyterians Put the Weed Under Their Feet.

Denver, Colo., May 28.—Clergymen and laymen should not use tobacco, but it is not contrary to the principles of the church for Presbyterian judges to grant saloon licenses. This was decided by the general assembly of the Presbyterian church.

The assembly thus expressed itself in approving the report of the temperance committee after a long discussion. The report commended President Taft, Emperor William and former President Eliot of Harvard for being teetotalers, and urged the ministers of the church to petition congress to stop interstate shipment of liquors, to discontinue the issuance of internal revenue receipts in prohibition territory and to prohibit the use of the mails for the distribution of advertisements of liquor.

"God grant that our judges do not resign upon such an occasion," said one commissioner, "for it will only pave the way for worse ones."

The resolution was defeated.

A special committee has decided upon Nashville, Tenn., as the place of meeting for the 1910 assembly. Chicago and Atlantic City, N. J., contested for the honor.

ADMITS HAVING STRUCK BLOW

Elias Ray Declares Deadly Act Was a Case of Self-Defense.

MILLIONAIRE FARMER'S PLEA

Land Owner Near Lafayette Acknowledges That His Was the Blow That Caused Death.

Lafayette, Ind., May 28.—Elias Ray, a millionaire land owner and farmer, has admitted to the authorities that he struck the blow that caused the death of Conrad Ortman, a young farm employe. The affair has caused much comment. Ray has not been arrested, but the grand jury will investigate the case. He declares he struck Ortman in self-defense when the young man was attacking him.

Ortman had been working for Ray since last March. Late Tuesday night Dr. Wetherill was called to the Ray farm to attend an injured man. He found Ortman unconscious, suffering from hemorrhage of the brain. The young man died while being brought to the hospital here.

The coroner found a wound over the right eye, one on the left hip, and one under the right arm. They opened the skull and found that the blow over the eye had produced concussion of the brain and hemorrhage that resulted fatally. On the arrival of the prosecutor, the sheriff and the city police at the Ray farm Mr. Ray admitted striking Ortman. He said he and Ortman were working with some hogs when Ortman refused to obey his orders. Ray said Ortman made for him first with his fists and then picked up a stick to strike him. Ray said he picked up a longer stick and defended himself. Another farm employe who said he witnessed the encounter corroborated Ray's story.

THOMPSON WAS NOT HELD

Police Dismissed Indianapolis Man Who Made Tragic Mistake.

Indianapolis, May 28.—It did not take Coroner Blackwell long to come to a conclusion in the case of George W. Thompson, a grief-stricken man, who shot and killed his wife, thinking the woman a burglar, in their home at 66 East Tenth street.

Thompson was locked up on the charge of manslaughter immediately after the shooting. The coroner talked with several witnesses and Thompson and he recommended to the department that Thompson be permitted to go, as the shooting was a terrible mistake. The police then had the charge of manslaughter dismissed.

Unknown Victim of Flames.

Marion, Ind., May 28.—While digging in the ruins of the Ackerman heading factory an employe of the factory discovered the charred body of a man so badly burned there is no positive means of identification. Muncie, Ind., May 28.—The body of a girl baby that evidently was only a few days old was discovered in White river. Coroner Cecil says the child probably was born alive and in good health. As there were no marks of violence on the body, it is supposed the babe was drowned. The police have no clew.

Evansville, Ind., May 28.—It seems certain that local street car men will go out Saturday morning. It is charged by the carmen that the company has a large number of strike-breakers in the city. at $5,000 and was promptly furnished. Arrangements for the trials have not been made, but it is thought the cases will be heard at an early date.

This is the second indictment for Governor Haskell in the Tulsa case. The first bills were dismissed on a technicality. The federal authorities at once began preparing new evidence along the lines indicated by the court's ruling. The fight before the grand jury had many sensational features. Numerous witnesses from Ohio and elsewhere testified.

Springfield, Ill., May 28.—Capital punishment will become a thing of the past in Illinois if the bill abolishing it which passed the house succeeds in getting through the senate and Governor Deneen does not veto it. BAILEY CHOKED NEWSPAPER MAN

Fiery Texas Senator Mixed it up With a New York Times Reporter.

MADE HOT SPEECH IN SENATE

Resented by Senate Reporter and Resulted in a Dispute Which Led to a Fracas.

Washington, May 28.—Senator Bailey of Texas and W. S. Manning, representative of the New York Times in the press gallery, exchanged blows as a result of a conversation they had in reference to an article printed by the New York newspaper questioning the sincerity of the senator in his course on the income tax.

The fistfight occurred in front of the senate committee on finance. There was a reference to Mr. Bailey's characterization of the New York Times' writer as "an infamous liar," and too soon for bystanders to apprehend what it was all about, Manning struck Bailey with his umbrella and the two men clinched. Neither one of the participants was injured, as they were separated by Senator Clapp, Porto Rican Commissioner Larranaga, a number of senate employes and several newspaper correspondents. The versions of Mr. Bailey and Mr. Manning are in substantial agreement as to the cause of the trouble and differ only as to the number of blows struck by each.

A bitter attack upon the author of an article in the New York Times charging that Senator Bailey had played into the hands of Senator Aldrich by his course in demanding an immediate vote on the income tax amendment and thus caused a split of the forces supporting such an amendment had been made by Mr. Bailey on the floor of the senate. Mr. Manning accosted Mr. Bailey after the adjournment of the session to inform him that he was inaccurate in suggesting Republican senators as a possible source of inspiration of the article. According to both Mr. Manning and Senator Bailey, the former disclaimed authorship of the story and at the same time stated that the inspiration for it had been Mr. Bailey's demands for immediate vote and his "hazing" of Republican senators who favored the income tax proposition, but who did not support him in his demands for a vote at the present time.

Mr. Bailey asked who did write the article, and at the same time declared, it is said, that the man who had written it was a "liar." According to both men the senator's language was very emphatic, and Mr. Manning responded that he "had not had the honor to write the story." Mr. Bailey says that the word "honor" was emphasized in a manner intended to be offensive. The conversation was begun in front of the main door to the senate chamber and was continued through the corridor leading to the senate committee on finance. The two men were directly in front of the door leading to the finance committee and also in front of one of the private elevators. Several persons heard the word "liar" proclaimed in a loud voice and then saw Mr. Bailey and Mr. Manning clinch. The latter claims Mr. Bailey hit him first. In the mix-up Mr. Manning struck the senator with his umbrella, knocking off the senator's hat, and the senator grabbed Mr. Manning by the throat.

Just at that moment the elevator stopped at the senate floor and Senator Clapp and Mr. Larranaga stepped from the car. Without waiting to learn the cause of the disturbance, Mr. Clapp threw his arms around Senator Bailey, who at that time seemed to be in a position to do serious injury to the newspaper correspondent, a young man of very slight build.

The Texas senator struggled desperately to break from this restraint, but Senator Clapp tightened his hold and newspaper correspondents pushed Mr. Manning away and insisted upon his leaving the corridor.

The speech by Mr. Bailey in regard to the newspaper article was one of the most scathing arraignments of a newspaper correspondent that has ever taken place in the senate. The senator not only asserted that the writer of the article was "an infamous liar," but that he was a "miserable creature unfit to associate with honest men." In this vein he talked for considerable time. Mr. Manning also is a Southerner, being a native of South Carolina.

To Succeed H. H. Rogers.

New York, May 28.—James A. Moffet, a director of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, will succeed the late Henry H. Rogers as vice president of the company, it is understood on good authority here. Mr. Moffet has had active charge of the transportation problems of the Standard Oil company for the last two years a task to which Mr. Rogers devoted himself. He is also president of the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

A TEXAS EDITOR IS TRESPASSING

Upon Dangerous Ground When he Speaks of the Feminine Toilet.

IS NOT CONSIDERED ACCURATE

When a Familiarity With the Numerous Details is Assumed.

We are amazed by the audacity of a Texas editor who makes an implied reflection upon women by presenting a comparative statement of the number of articles of wearing apparel that it takes to constitute the toilet of each. He says:

"When a man is dressed completely he wears ten articles, including his socks and neckties. A woman wears nineteen different articles in her hair alone. A woman wears at least 57 different articles and is compelled to keep track of them. A woman spends one-third of her time in dressing and undressing; a man about 20 minutes each day."

The Texas editor is trespassing upon dangerous ground and assumes a familiarity with the details of the feminine toilet that cannot be accepted as accurate without some incontrovertible proof that he knows what he is talking about. If he does speak by the card he is an exception among men, for in interviews with a dozen or more substantial citizens who have had opportunity for experience the invariable reply has been "You may search me." But accepting for the sake of argument that the statement of the Texas editor with reference to female apparel are correct, we are impressed with the thought that the comparison drawn is unfair. It is fair to presume that for his illustration the Texas editor has taken Texas men. That is a natural and reasonable conclusion.

Now the general impression of a Texas man's toilet is exceedingly simple. According to popular belief it consists of a gun and a pair of spurs with now and then a hat on dress occasions and a pair of boots to fasten the spurs to, so that to draw the contrast between this costume of the simple life and that suggested by propriety to the average woman is manifestly unfair.

We presume there is a marked disparity in the number of articles worn by men and women, but we frankly ask the Texas editor if there is one in the catalogue of the latter that he would have women dispense with, particularly if it should in the slightest degree detract from what is known as feminine charm? This is the only fair test to which the Texas editor's implied criticism can be put, and by that test we opine it will be generally regarded as untenable.

TWO MORE FOR INDIANA WETS

Floyd and Laporte Counties Retain Their Saloons as the Result of Local Option Election.

HARRISON COUNTY GOES DRY

Michigan City and Laporte Sway Election in County by the Lake.

LaPorte, Ind., May 28.—Almost complete annihilation was the fate of the Anti-Saloon league here Thursday. Returns show surprising results in favor of retaining licensed saloons, the "wet" majority being in the neighborhood of 4,300. LaPorte (city) went 1,200 "wet." Michigan City gave 3,000 majority against the Anti-Saloon leaguers. The latter attribute their defeat to poor organization, but the fact of the matter was that sentiment throughout the county favored retaining licensed saloons. LaPorte county has 126 saloons.

THE RESULT IN FLOYD

Anti-Saloon Leaguers Meet With Decisive Defeat.

New Albany, Ind., May 28.—The Anti-Saloon league was overwhelmed in Floyd county Thursday. The "wet" majority reaches about 1,900. Harrison In Dry Column.

Corydon, Ind., May 28.—Harrison county, with three saloons, voted "dry" Thursday by the narrow margin of 169. The Anti-Saloon league expected victory by 1,200.

Guleterres swore to kill Reyes, and although he rose in rank and secured a commission he did not forget his desire for vengeance.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, May 28.—The Eighth, Ninth and Eleventh Indiana congressional districts are giving the Republicans a lot of worry, even at this early date, it is said. Fears are expressed that neither can be redeemed next year, even though they are all normally Republican. When Congressman John A. M. Adair carried the Eighth four years ago the Republicans attributed his success to the fierce feud between the Crömer and anti-Crömer elements. When he repeated his victory last year by a still greater majority, speculation was aroused as to whether the district has become Democratic or whether Adair has mesmerized a majority of the voters by his course at Washington. While he is a thoroughgoing partisan in state politics, he has not offended the Republicans by his votes at Washington. On more than one occasion he has taken sides with the Republicans when he thought they were right. He has looked after his constituents in good shape and it is being predicted generally that he will not have a great deal of trouble in being re-elected. State Representative Miles Furnas of Winchester is the most talked-of prospective candidate among the Republicans, but it is said that Senator Nathan Hawkins, who was the nominee last year, wants to run again. It is said that he attributes his defeat very largely to the fact that he was forced to vote for the passage of the county local option bill a short time before the election, and that he could win if he had a fair chance. It is likely, however, that Furnas and Hawkins will not have the field to themselves as there are others in the Eighth who will ask for the nomination.

SALOON KEEPER HELD

Must Pay $5,000 to Wife For Selling Liquor to Man Who Drowned.

Vincennes, Ind., May 28.—A Knox county jury gave Mrs. Bertha Hillman of Petersburg damages in the sum of $5,000 against William E. Stewart of Jintown, Gibson county, for the loss of her husband, Lawrence Hillman.

Her husband, it is alleged, went to the saloon kept by Stewart at Jintown, on the Wabash, with a number of other men and was sold liquor when intoxicated. He fell out of a boat into a pond and was drowned.

This is the first case of the kind that has been tried in the Knox circuit court where suit was not brought on the bond of the saloon man. Mrs. Hillman's attorneys alleged that $2,000, the amount of bond a saloon man gives, was not sufficient to demand in such a case as that of Mrs. Hillman. Mrs. Hillman is young and a member of a well-respected family.

Hogue Convicted of Perjury.

Dallas, Tex., May 28.—W. J. Hogue, well known in Iowa, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, was found guilty on a charge of perjury by a trial jury in the United States court here. He was tried before Judge Meek for an alleged perjury committed while a witness in his own behalf on the trial of a case against him for fraudulent use of the United States mail last January. The schemes, it is charged, he used the mails to exploit were town-site propositions.

Fierce Michigan Forest Fires.

Negaunee, Mich., May 28.—Forest fires have destroyed part of the village of Dalton and are reported raging along the Munising and South Shore roads. The McMillan camp on the shore line is reported burning. This camp is situated in a hardwood district. Big fires are near Sidnaw and along the north shore.

Dr. Jones' Murderers Condemned.

Manila, May 28.—The trial of the native tribesmen who murdered Dr. William Jones, the noted anthropologist of the Field museum of Chicago, in the Isabella province on the island of Luzon, last March, was concluded at Bayonbong today. Three of the natives were sentenced to death.

Train Service Badly Crippled.

New Orleans, La., May 28.—Train service on many roads in Louisiana is badly crippled as the result of torrential rains. Many streams are out of their banks, sources of bridges gone and several towns have been cut off from railroad connection.

Takes Her Own Life.

Indianapolis, May 28.—Katie McDonald, aged eighteen years, 1103 English avenue, swallowed a quantity of carbolic acid and died at the City hospital. The police say that it was clearly a case of suicide, though they have not yet been able to find a cause for it.

Miner Is Fatally Struck.

Shelburn, Ind., May 28.—During a quarrel at Reliance Mine, two miles southwest of here, Bert Beaver, a miner, stabbed William McCreary, also a miner, over a "craps" game. The victim is not expected to recover.

Former Trustee on Trial.

Anderson, Ind., May 28.—The case of Francis M. Hardy, former trustee of Anderson township, indicted by the grand jury on a perjury charge in connection with his final report, is on trial in the circuit court.

Favorable weather conditions for the new crop in this country caused sharp declines in wheat prices at Chicago yesterday.

ARE UP IN THE AIR
OVER QUESTION

Of What Constitutes a School Patron—Supreme Court Never Gave Decision.

SEVERAL GUESSES WERE MADE

Attorney General Has One Opinion and the State Superintendent Another.

Instead of settling the question as to who is entitled under the law to be called a patron of a public school, and therefore, has a right to vote on questions of re-establishing schools which have been abandoned and of changing sites of school buildings, the opinion delivered by the attorney general to Robert J. Ale, State superintendent of public instruction, has left the question still a matter of dispute. A number of township trustees out over the State are as much at sea as ever concerning what to do about permitting a head of a family in which there are no children of school age to have a vote where none except school patrons are expected to vote.

The State superintendent is inclined to abide by a court decision which holds that the head of a family where there are no children has no right to be termed a patron, while the opinion of Edward H. White, assistant attorney-general, who wrote the opinion, is that the head of such family is entitled to a vote on school district questions, although he does not hold that he is a patron if he be not one.

The trouble lies in the fact that the supreme court has never defined the word patron in its application to the public schools of the State. It has decided questions concerning the power of voters on school questions, and in one case has raised the question of who should be considered a school patron, but does not supply an answer.

The only way out of the difficulties which confront a number of the trustees, according to Mr. White, is for a case to be taken through the courts in order to have the supreme court define a school patron explicitly.

In a number of townships the State board of health has condemned public school buildings and ordered changes of sites. Under the law the township trustees cannot change the sites except by a majority vote of the patrons of the school affected, and in some instances the division of sentiment is so close as to cause one or two votes to throw the result either way. It was to decide differences where the patrons are almost equally divided that an opinion was asked of the attorney-general.

HONOR IS DUE TO
CHAUNCEY DEPEW

Dinner Given Celebrating His Seventy-Fifth Birthday Anniversary.

HE EXPRESSED GREAT PRIDE

In Speech That He Had Never Said Anything Which Would Leave a Sting of Pain.

At a dinner given in honor of his 75th birthday Chauncey Depew expressed pride in the fact that he had never knowingly said or done anything against anybody which would leave a sting or pain. This is something worth saying when a man can say it, especially after he has lived 75 years and engaged actively in affairs affecting large numbers of people, and, happily, there are not very many persons, both men and women who can conscientiously say it.

Mr. Depew is an optimist by nature. It is his disposition to be cheerful and to look upon the bright side of life, so that it requires no special effort for him to radiate kindness and consideration for those about him, and he affords to his fellow men an example which proves the truth of his declaration that his misfortunes have been his greatest blessings and that his most serious trouble have been about things that never happened. Mr. Depew is remarkable in another way, for being at the age of 75 a well preserved man, both mentally and physically, and still actively engaged in the affairs of life, of which he is enabled to take a clear and unprejudiced view from the lofty standpoint of his long experience. He is only one of many of the present day who are disapproving the Osler theory that men lose their usefulness at 60, when in fact but for their ripe judgement and prudence, their keen analysis and their firmly rooted positions on questions which long ago were relegated to their proper places in the category of principles the progress of the world would be greatly hindered.

Men like Chauncey Depew are living examples of the truth of the declaration often make now-a-days, that age is only a matter of years and that though they may live long according to the limitations set on life they still die young. Their hearts still burn with the fires of youth and their minds continue to work with unabated vigor. These are the rewards of right living and thinking, of purity and high aspiration.

WANT TRACTION
LINE EXTENDED

Andersonville People Think Interurban Should Not Stop at Rushville.

BUT COME DOWN THEIR WAY

Offers Numerous Reasons For the Extension of Line Into Franklin.

People down Andersonville way are anxious for an interurban line. It would be the "making" of that prosperous country to have a railway of some sort through there. The editor of the Four County Herald offers the following suggestion:

"The Rushville Republican says: that a plan is proposed of building a traction line from New Castle to Rushville. Why stop at Rushville?"

"The object of the new company is surely to make as much money out of the deal as possible. Then why not connect with the Cincinnati line at Harrison, passing through Rushville and running southeast through New Salem, Andersonville, Laurel, Metamora, Brookville, Cedar Grove, etc.?"

"The route is ideal, the project feasible, the passenger and freight business would be permanent and paying and we trust the Republican and other friends in Rushville will take the matter up and see if the project can not be successfully consummated."

The house was beautifully decorated, a separate color scheme being used in each room with a great predominance of high school and college pennants. The dining room was tastefully decorated in pink and white, the Junior class colors, while the parlor was ornamented with the old gold and black of the Senior class. Refreshments were served during the evening. Pauden Brothers orchestra of Indianapolis furnished the music.

The BLACK BAG

CHAPTER XXV.

BRIEFLY the girl sat silent, staring before her with sweet, somber eyes. Then, "In the very beginning," she told him, with a conscious laugh—"this sounds story bookish, I know—in the very beginning George Burgoyne Calendar, an American, married his cousin a dozen times removed and an Englishwoman, Alice Burgoyne Hallam."

"Hallam!"
 "Wait, please." She sat up, bending forward and frowning down upon her interlacing gloved fingers. She was finding it difficult to say what she must. Kirkwood, watching hungrily the fair drooping head, the flawless profile clear and radiant against the night blackened window, saw hot signals of shame burning on her cheek and throat and forehead.

"But never mind," he began awkwardly.
 "No," she told him, with decision. "Please let me go on." She continued, stumbling, trusting to his sympathy to bridge the gaps in her narrative. "My father—there was trouble of some sort—at all events, he disappeared when I was a baby. My mother—died. I was reared in the home of my great-uncle, Colonel George Burgoyne of the Indian army, retired. My mother had been his favorite niece, they say. I presume that was why he cared for me. I grew up in his home in Cornwall. It was my home, just as he was my father in everything but fact.

"A year ago he died, leaving me everything—the town house in Froggnall street, his estate in Cornwall. Everything was willed to me on condition that I must never live with my father nor in any way contribute to his support. If I disobeyed, the entire estate without reserve was to go to his nearest of kin. Colonel Burgoyne was unmarried and had no children."

The girl paused, lifting to Kirkwood's face her eyes, clear, fearless, truthful. "I never was given to understand that there was anybody who might have inherited other than myself," she declared.

"I see."
 "Last week I received a letter, signed with my father's name, begging me to appoint an interview with him in London. I did so—guess how gladly! I was alone in the world, and he my father, whom I had never thought to see. We met at his hotel, the Pless. He wanted me to come and live with him; said that he was growing old and lonely and needed a daughter's love and care. He told me that he had made a fortune in America and was amply able to provide for us both. As for my inheritance, he persuaded me that it was by right the property of Frederick Hallam, Mrs. Hallam's son."

"I have met the young gentleman," interpolated Kirkwood.
 "His name was new to me, but my father assured me that he was the next of kin mentioned in Colonel Burgoyne's will and convinced me that I had no real right to the property. After all, he was my father. I agreed. I could not bear the thought of wronging anybody. I was to give up everything but my mother's jewels. It seems—my father said—I don't—I can't believe it now!"

She choked out a little, dry sob. It was some time before she seemed able to continue.

"I was told that my great-uncle's collection of jewels had been my mother's property. He had in life a passion for collecting jewels, and it had been his whim to carry them with him wherever he went. When he died in Froggnall street they were in the safe by the head of his bed. I, in my grief, at first forgot them and then afterward carelessly put off removing them."

"To come back to my father, night before last we were to call on Mrs. Hallam. It was to be our last night in England. We were to sail for the continent on the private yacht of a friend of my father's the next morning. This is what I was told and believed, you understand."

"That night Mrs. Hallam was dining at another table at Pless, it seems. I did not then know her. When leaving she put a note on our table by my father's elbow. I was astonished beyond words. He seemed much agitated, told me that he was called away on urgent business, a matter of life and death, and begged me to go alone to Froggnall street, get the jewels and meet him at Mrs. Hallam's later. I wasn't altogether a fool, for I began dimly to suspect then that something was wrong, but I was a fool, for I consented to do as he desired. You understand—you know?"

"I do, indeed," replied Kirkwood grimly. "I understand a lot of things now that I didn't five minutes ago. Please let me think."

But the time he took for deliberation was short. He had hoped to find a way to spare her by sparing Calendar, but momentarily he was becoming more impressed with the futility of dealing with her save in terms of candor—merciful, though they might seem harsh.

"I must tell you," he said, "that you have been outrageously misled, swindled and deceived. I have heard from your father's own lips that Mrs. Hal-

I am was to pay him £2,000 for keeping you out of England and losing you your inheritance. I'm inclined to question, furthermore, the assertion that these jewels were your mother's. Frederick Hallam was the man who followed you into the Froggnall street house and attacked me on the stairs. Mrs. Hallam admits that he went there to get the jewels. But he didn't want anybody to know it."

"But that doesn't prove—"
 "Just a minute." Rapidly and concisely Kirkwood recounted the events wherein he had played a part subsequent to the adventure of Bermondsey Old Stairs. He was guilty of but one evasion. On one point only did he slur the truth. He conceived it his honorable duty to keep the girl in ignorance of his straitened circumstances. She was not to be distressed by knowledge of his distress, nor could he tolerate the suggestion of seeming to play for her sympathy. It was necessary, then, to invent a motive to excuse his return to No. 9 Froggnall street. I believe he chose to exaggerate the inquisitiveness of his nature and threw in for good measure a desire to recover a prized trinket of no particular moment, esteemed for its associations, and so forth. But, whatever the fabrication, it passed muster. To the girl his motives seemed less important than the discoveries that resulted from them.

"I am afraid," he concluded the summary of the confabulation he had overheard at the skylight of the Alethea's cabin, "you'd best make up your mind that your father!"

"Yes," whispered the girl huskily and turned her face to the window, a quivering muscle in the firm young throat alone betraying her emotion.

"It's a bad business," he pursued relentlessly—"bad all round. Mulready, in your father's pay, tries to have him arrested, the better to rob him. Mrs. Hallam, to secure your property for that precious pet, Freddie, connives at ning and counter planning against the machinations in whose wiles they two had become so perilously entangled.

Primarily there was Hobbs to be dealt with—no easy task, for Kirkwood dared not resort to violence nor in any way invite the attention of the authorities, and threats would be an idle waste of breath in the case of that corrupt and malignant little cockney, himself as keen as any needle, adept in all the artful resources of the underworld whence he had sprung, and further primed for action by that master rogue, Calendar.

The train was pulling slowly into the station when he reluctantly abandoned his latest unfeasible scheme for shaking off the little Englishman and concluded that their salvation was only to be worked out through everlasting vigilance, incessant movement and the favor of the blind goddess Fortune.

if she doesn't instigate a kidnapping. Your father takes her money to deprive you of yours, which could profit him nothing so long as you remained in lawful possession of it, and at the same time he conspires to rob, through you, the rightful owners, if they are rightful owners. And, if they are, why should Freddie Hallam go like a thief in the night to secure property that's his beyond dispute? I don't really think you owe your father any further consideration."

He waited patiently. Eventually "No-o!" the girl sobbed assent.

"It's this way: Calendar, counting on your sparing him in the end, is going to hound us. He's doing it now. There's Hobbs in the next car, for proof. Until these jewels are returned, whether to Froggnall street or to young Hallam, we're both in danger, both thieves in the sight of the law. And your father knows that too. There's no profit to be had by discounting the temper of these people. They're as desperate a gang of swindlers as ever lived. They'll have those jewels if they have to go as far as murder!"

"Mr. Kirkwood!" she deprecated in horror.

He wagged his head stubbornly, ominously. "I've seen them in the raw. They're hot on our trail now. Ten to one they'll be on our backs before we can get across the channel. Once in England we will be comparatively safe. Until then—but I'm a brute—I'm frightening you!"

"You are, dreadfully," she confessed in a tremulous voice.

"Forgive me. If you look at the dark side first, the other seems all the brighter. Please don't worry. We'll pull through with flying colors or my name's not Phillip Kirkwood."

"I have every faith in you," she informed him, flawlessly sincere. "When I think of all you've done and dared for me, on the mere suspicion that I needed your help!"

"We'd best be getting ready," he interrupted hastily. "Here's Brussels."

It was so. Lights, in little clusters and long, wheeling lines, were leaping out of the darkness and flashing back as the train rumbled through the suburbs of the little Paris of the north. Already the other passengers were bestirring themselves, gathering together wraps and hand luggage and preparing for the journey's end.

Rising, Kirkwood took down their two satchels from the overhead rack and waited, in grim abstraction plan-

Lesson IX.—Second Quarter,
For May 30, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Jas. ii, 14-26.
Memory Verse 26—Golden Text, Jas. ii, 20—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

In our last lesson we had a good address from James at the council of Jerusalem, a wise and practical talk on an important subject. Now we are to have two lessons from his epistle. There are no contradictions in the Scriptures, for the one Holy Spirit wrote the whole book, and He cannot contradict Himself. If the writers (the human agencies) seem not quite to agree, it is because they are talking of different aspects of the same topic. Paul and Peter and James and John are in perfect accord on salvation by faith alone, then good works or a consistent life as the evidence of faith before men and then the glory and the reward according to our works. In James, outside the lesson for today, see the new birth by the word of God, as plainly as Peter or John put it, in chapter i, 18. See the kingdom and the coming of Christ in chapters ii, 5; v, 7, 8. But the burden of James' letter is the second aspect of salvation, the bearing and the doing to the glory of God because we are saved.

The first verse in our lesson asks what benefit can there be in a faith that is a mere "say so" or word of mouth. See how strong John is on that point: "He that saith I know Him and keepeth not His commandments is a liar." "If a man say I love God and hateth his brother he is a liar" (1 John ii, 4; iv, 20). The same teaching is in Isa. xxix, 13; Ezek. xxxiii, 31, and from our Lord Himself in Matt. xv, 8. Behold the Divine unity of Scripture. No amount of mere "say so's" can save any one. It is "with the heart that man believeth unto righteousness" (Rom. x, 10). Mere talk will never feed nor clothe any one; therefore John says, "Let us not love in word nor in tongue, but in deed and in truth." A living faith must show itself in works, and, if there are no works as the evidence before men of the faith we profess to have, then it is, as James says, a dead faith, simply a painted light from which no light proceeds. It is to be feared that many who say they believe, believe, as the demons do, that there is a God and a Saviour, Jesus Christ—a mere knowledge of the facts which knowledge saves no one. It is the honest reception of Christ that saves, for truly to believe is to receive him (John i, 12).

Paul never stated more fully nor more simply salvation by faith alone than James does in verse 23, where he affirms that God imputed righteousness to Abraham because he believed. This statement is first found in Gen. xv, 6, and is repeated three times in the New Testament—Rom. iv, 3; Gal. iii, 6, and here—the Holy Spirit by this fourfold repetition emphasizing it most strongly. The phrase used of Abraham only, "friend of God," is found in two other places—II Chron. xx, 7; Isa. xli, 8—but see for our own benefit in this connection John xv, 14, 15. A full and eternal redemption is the possession of every one who truly receives the Lord Jesus Christ, and God needs no works as the evidence of this faith, for He looks on the heart, but the works are necessary as an evidence before men, and James nowhere puts this more strongly than does Paul in Tit. iii, 8, a faithful saying which it seems almost impossible to get Christians to repeat, for my experience has been that if I ask in a public gathering to have all repeat a verse beginning "This is a faithful saying" they always respond with 1 Tim. i, 15, and rarely does any one touch the one in Titus on good works. It is somewhat like the two John iii, 16's.

A life of self denial and good works is not popular except with those who hope to win heaven thereby. Real gratitude is as rare as it was with the cleansed lepers (one in ten), while a possible gain seems to be an inspiration. Few believers seem to know that the love of God, which fully saves us by the sacrifice of the Lord Jesus, also sets before us crowns to be won by working for them and which we may have to cast at His feet in that day. In Jas. i, 2, 12, we are reminded that trials are precious and that those are blessed who endure, for such glorify God and will receive the crown of life which is only mentioned elsewhere in Rev. ii, 10. Note Peter's strong words on enduring in I Pet. ii, 19-21; iv, 12, 13. Enduring implies humility and submission, and that we resist the devil, who hates humility (Jas. iv, 7-10). James is very strong on another line of service, that of self renunciation, which Paul tells us in I Cor. ix, 24-27, will bring us an incorruptible crown. The story of the crowns is simply told in a tract entitled "Rewards For Service," published by L. & K., box 216, Harrisburg, Pa.

The two illustrations of faith and works given in this lesson, Abraham and Rahab, seem to cover all classes of believers, from the highest to the lowest, and what an encouragement to even the worst of sinners to think of being associated with Abraham in the kingdom (Matt. viii, 11). We are justified before God by faith in Jesus Christ, but before men by the good works prepared for us to walk in and which God Himself will work in us (Eph. ii, 10; Phil. ii, 13; Hab. xlii, 21).

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week
Beginning May 30, 1909.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Heroes of home missions.—Matt. x, 7-16.

The first missionary tour of the twelve apostles was strictly a home missionary one. They were sent out to the Jews only, as the day for the offering of the gospel to the gentiles had not yet come. Christ's command to them was, "Into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not, but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." But of what they did we have little knowledge, but their later lives were heroic in missionary endeavor.

America does not want for heroes of home missions. Our country was settled by Christian people who preached the gospel to the native Indians and subsequently to the unevangelized people who lived within our borders, usually called the exceptional populations, such as the Mormons, Mexicans, mountain whites, colored race and others. In this work the highest kind of heroism was often displayed.

1. John Elliot, "the apostle to the Indians," stands first among our home mission heroes. Elliot labored among the Pequots and other tribes in eastern Massachusetts. He began his work in 1646, while pastor of the church at Roxbury. His incessant labors were crowned with success. He gathered his converts into towns and established schools and civilized industries. The towns were known as "Indian praying towns." Elliot made two catechisms for the Indians and translated the Bible into their language in 1658. Two years later it was printed—the first Bible printed on the American continent. How appropriate it was that it should have been in the Indian tongue! Elliot labored among his people for thirty years, often amid great dangers, teaching them to work, to read and to pray. He gave them a Bible in their own tongue, and from the fighting savages six churches were gathered and more than a thousand "praying Indians." Elliot's famous motto, written at the end of his Indian grammar, was, "Prayer and praise through faith in Jesus Christ will do anything."

2. David Brainerd was a conspicuous missionary hero. His work was among the Indians in Connecticut, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. His greatest and most successful work was performed among the Crossweeks, a tribe in central New Jersey. He labored against tremendous odds and yet, by the grace of God, transformed drunken, howling savages into devout and faithful Christians. Dr. Ashbel says, "His success here was perhaps without a parallel in heathen missions since the days of the apostles." The Indians became settled into a town, and a church and school were established. Weakened by ill health, he moved to Elizabethtown. Gaining a little strength, he was able to visit his people to bid them farewell, Feb. 18, 1847. He died Oct. 9 the same year, after a brilliant career, although he was only thirty years of age at the time of his death. Brainerd's life by Jonathan Edwards should be read by all Christian Endeavorers. Before his death his brother John visited him and continued his work.

3. Marcus Whitman is perhaps the most picturesque of all our missionary heroes. It was by his heroic action that Oregon and the great northwest were saved to the United States. As a missionary in Oregon he saw the encroachments of the English in that territory and appealed to the government to do something to save it. Appeals failing, Whitman came all the way to Washington and received permission from the government to take sufficient people to Oregon to form a settlement and thus sustain American superiority. In this great undertaking he was successful, leading 2,000 people to this distant home, and when they were settled the American flag was raised, never to come down. Whitman was successful in his work among the Indians, but he aroused the enmity of the whites of other nations, and they hired Indians to murder him. He died in 1847.

4. Mrs. A. R. McFarland must be mentioned as the most heroic woman in the history of home missions. Alaska had been ours for twenty years before the natives had the gospel sent to them. Then Sheldon Jackson took Mrs. McFarland, a brave and cultured woman to Fort Wrangel, where through a long winter she was the only white woman. Jackson returned, and the cry went up, "Have you left Mrs. McFarland in Alaska alone?" He boldly answered: "I have. What are you going to do for her?" He pictured her needs, and liberal offerings were raised, and she was thus assisted to begin a splendid work, in which she was engaged for many years.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. lli, 1-7; Nah. i, 15; II Sam. xli, 1-7; John i, 9-13; Matt. xv, 21-28; Acts i, 8; Gal. ii, 7-9; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 1, 2; Rev. xxii, 17.

The Ant Hill Society.

After I had come through the forest of the eternal twilight, in central Africa, where the real pygmies dwell in eternal gloom, it was a genuine surprise to see ant hills twenty feet high and proportionate in circumference. It was still more amazing to see a finely designed and constructed church seating at least 500 persons and working cannibalism out of the savages by working Christianity into them. But greatest of all to cause astonishment was a young people's meeting with the Christian Endeavor brand on it; hence I will write about these things—the ant hills, the ant hill church, the ant hill Christian Endeavor society, the fight—William Edgar Gell, LL D., F. R. G. S., in Christian Endeavor World.

WHAT IS SO RARE AS A DAY IN JUNE?

Hicks is of the Opinion That June Weather Will be Decidedly June.

PREDICTIONS NOT CONSOLING

To Picnic Parties Common to the Month of June—Storm—Storm—Storm.

Old Mother Earth will sure be an unsettled matron during the month of June, for, in the crystal ball Rev. Hicks can see earthquakes and seismic disturbances galore. These coupled with extraordinary electrical storms, will make things interesting for mortal man, giving everybody a gambler's chance for hooking up with a bolt of lightning or tumbling down a crack in the globe.

Storm conditions will develop on the 1st and move regularly from west to east. Thunderstorms in June will be more sporadic; this is liable to break out in several scattered localities. From the 1st to the 20th is the seismic cycle, during which he may momentarily expect to hear at any time of cities and nations being dropped into the sea or shaken off of the map. Volcanoes will be active and will be lavish with their lava.

The regular storm period will be on the 10th, lasting from the 8th until the 13th inclusive. Here is where the lightning will cut capers and will give partially fine exhibition within three days of the 11th. Some earthquakes are billed for the 13th. The reactionary period of storms will be from the 16th to the 18th. The culmination of the seismic strain will come within three days of noon on the 17th, but, the forecaster consolingly says, the rumpus will doubtless be in the extremes of the earth.

From the 19th to the 23d will be a regular storm period. Thunderstorms can be expected each and every afternoon, with fluctuations of the barometer, high temperature, great humidity and startling electrical displays. Sunday, June 29th, will contain all these things. High winds with possible tornadoes will attend some of these storms. Overflowing of storms will be a natural consequence, but no extreme high waters need be feared. A second reactionary storm period is from the 26th to the 28th. Picnic parties should be careful, Hicks says, as bolts of lightning are going to drop from the clear sky and rain will deluge localities with remarkably brief notice. A warning is given against taking shelter under green trees during a June storm.
